Facial Reflex Therapy has a profoundly relaxing effect on the brain and central nervous system. Stimulating facial reflex points is so effective because nerves and blood vessels are numerous about the face and close to the brain. By working through the Central Nervous System, the body responds to regulate and modulate the activities of organs and systems to restore the flow of blood, lymph, nerve impulses, hormones, etc. to their optimal levels. Children and young adults have benefited by the correction of difficulties associated with learning and school. Health maintenance and facial rejuvenation are also beneficial applications. As a complementary modality, it can be safely applied regardless of other treatments or therapies that may be in progress. This is a very versatile modality.
